

The Uncooperative Slingshot

By Michele Clark McConnochie

What would you do?

“My first job as queen will be to hand the control of Dralfynia to the people, where it belongs. No more kings and queens telling people what to do. A government instead, with the royal family as figureheads. I’ve chosen the first one, but after that, the people can vote.”

Right at the very end of her strange sagas, Sabrina takes over as the queen of Dralfynia and decides to set up a government where different people are responsible for things they can do better than her.

Imagine that you find out you are royal and you could rule your country for a week! What changes would you make?